

Dual Credit

The diagram features a large red circle on the left containing the text 'Dual Credit'. A thick red curved line extends from the right side of this circle, curving upwards and then downwards. This line branches into two smaller, light red circles. The top circle is positioned above a block of text, and the bottom circle is positioned above another block of text.

I'm still in high school and want to take some courses that will count toward college and high school credit.
